He named it Cesarea, in honor of Augustus Caesar, the Emperor. The buildings were made of white stone. There was a theatre (from which Herod Agrippa was carried out to die), and an amphitheatre, with aqueducts for the conveyance of water, and a temple dedicated to Caesar, and many other splendid buildings. Paul was here several times. It was here that Agabus represented, by binding his own two hands, the imprisonment of Paul at Jerusalem if he should venture to go up there. Nevertheless, ready even to die for Christ, they took up their carriages (rather what was carried, their luggage), and went up to Jerusalem (Acts xxi. 15). At a later time, for two whole...
